SEC. ROY STUMP RESIGNS C. OF C.

Will Go In Real Estate Business Here

EFFECTIVE JUNE 1

Says Salary Insufficient to Attract Him Further

After serving as secretary and general manager of the Port Arthur Chamber of Commerce and Shipping since February, 1920, Leroy G. Stump will leave the organization June 1 to enter the real estate and general agency business for himself.

Stump's resignation was presented to the directors Monday, but no action was taken on it until Tuesday, it became known today. Several applications for Stump's place have been filed, but no successor selected. H. E. Banker, president of the Chamber of Commerce and Shipping, said today:

"I cannot afford to work for the salary paid the manager of the Chamber of Commerce while opportunities for making more money are presenting themselves daily in Port Arthur," Stump said.

"While I am severing my official capacity with the Chamber of Commerce, I will stand ready at all times to give my services to the organization in any way I am called upon to respond."

During the time Stump served as manager, succeeding Dick Richardson, the membership of the Chamber of Commerce has grown from 350 to 900 members. Stump built up a very elaborate statistics department, including records of every cargo in and out of the Sabine district ports. These statistics, it is said, are partly responsible for the Humphreys and Atlantic refining companies locating near Port Arthur.

Three years in office. Outstanding work of the Chamber of Commerce and shipping during the time Stump served as secretary includes the fight waged by the organization against the Kansas City Southern railroad to have the docks at Port Arthur thrown open to all railroads on an equal basis; the establishment of a traffic department, headed by Frank Potts, securing many of railroads favorable to Port Arthur; and efforts of the organization to bring fresh water to Port Arthur.

"The Chamber of Commerce has all the equipment for doing a big work and everything is in running order. I will stand ready at all times to render the new manager any assistance possible, giving him the details of the work, if desired, and serving the organization in any way it sees fit to call upon me," Stump said.

During the first ten days of May, a total of 30 permits were issued, totalling $96,772.

Miss Morris swam ashore after the accident and wandered in the woods more than two hours before she was found. High waves are supposed to have overturned the boat.

Mount's Frail Mother Denies Hazing Victim Took His Life

Declares Son Was Murdered By Hazards and Died Fighting; Say University President Laid

CHICAGO, May 11.—Mrs. J. L. Mount, frail mother of Leighton Mount, today dramatically related how her son committed suicide and declared she will fight to bring his slayers to justice.

She branded parts of the testimony of President Walter Dill Scott, of Northwestern University before the university as "chumpus lies."

In denying Scott's testimony that she expressed fear to him that Leighton ran away or took his own life, Mrs. Mount accused Scott of influencing her to "keep quiet about developments in the case to protect the school."

"My boy was killed by hazards. He died fighting. Now I am going to fight. I am through protecting Northwestern."

The mother said that soon after Leighton's disappearance, President Scott called her up and told her he had expelled fifteen students, but asked her to keep quiet so they could enter other institutions.

"They told me my boy would return. That's why I kept quiet. Now I am through keeping quiet. I demand justice."

She immediately held a long conference with John Sharbaro, assistant attorney, and said she laid additional information in the case before him.

Sweetheart Changes Mind

Aligned with Mrs. Mount in her fight today was Mrs. Doris Fuch, the youth's sweetheart, to whom the mother was reported to have objected. "I have abandoned the theory I first held that Leighton killed himself, and I am confident now he was killed by hazards," she told the grand jury.

Michael Hughes, chief of detectives, at the head of an "expert commission," visited the pier today and returned an opinion that the position of Mount's skeleton indicated the body was placed there by others.

A commission of physicians will examine the skeleton for traces of chemicals, said to have been used in keeping it from being noticed in its hiding place.

Slayer Says He's Revenged for Parents' Torture

BERLIN, May 11.—Russia's representatives at the Lausanne conference formally accusing Switzerland of failing to take precautions to protect the lives of Vorovsky, Ahrens and Dibrilovsky, after being notified an attack on the Soviet Russian note says the allies will be held morally responsible for the death of Vorovsky and the wounding of the others.

LAUSANNE, May 11.—"I'm glad I had revenge," Maurice Comadi, former officer in the Czar's army, who late yesterday threw the Lausanne conference into consternation by assassinating M. Vorovsky, Russian delegate, mortally wounding the latter's secretary and shooting another Russian, made this statement as part of a lengthy plea before an examining magistrate today.

Says Reds Starved Sons

Comadi charged the bolsheviks with torturing his aged parents and two of his sons, who, he said, died of starvation and cruel treatment in Russia after the revolution.

In the dining room of the Hotel Cecil last night, after having consumed numerous brandies, Comadi drew a revolver and approaching the table where Vorovsky, Ahrens, chief of the Russian Telegraph agency, and Dibrilovsky, the former's secretary, were seated, shot down all three with six bullets. He then gave himself up.

2X4 Scantling Imbedded in Heart of Pin-Oak Tree

is a Relic of the '65 Storm

ORANGE, Texas, May 11.—Residents here are puzzled over the finding of a perfectly preserved piece of 2x4 scantling imbedded in the heart of a pin-oak tree which was cut down several days ago.

The oak measured 27 inches in diameter and was known to have been standing for more than fifty years. The length of the piece of scantling could not be ascertained. One of the theories advanced is that the piece of timber was driven into the tree during the severe storm of 1865 when the town, then known as Madison, was almost completely destroyed.

ELECT BLEDSOE S.M.A. PRESIDENT

To Head 4,000 Medicos at 1924 Meet

President-elect of the Texas State Medical association, comprising 4,000 Texas medicos, Dr. M. F. Bledsoe returned to Port Arthur today from the 1923 sessions of the state association held this week in Fort Worth.

Names Registration Plans

"One of the first things I am going to work for is to bring Texas into the birth registration area of the United States, a project backed by the club women throughout Texas," Dr. Bledsoe said here today. "Only about 65 per cent of the births in the state are registered now. Before we can be admitted into the birth registration area, 90 per cent of the births will have to be registered."

Not only was Dr. Bledsoe chosen to head the state association next year, but he was appointed member of two important committees at this year's sessions of the association, the committee on re-writing the by-laws and constitution, and the committee on public education.

SAUNDERS AND BANKER FIGHT

Row When Piggy-W. Head Asks Outside Bid

MEMPHIS, Tenn., May 11.—Memphis bankers and officials of the Chamber of Commerce met today in a new effort to keep Clarence Saunders and Piggy Wiggly in the home town.

Saunders, the former $1 a week grocery clerk, at the same time negotiated with financiers of other cities for a location for Piggy Wiggly.

The fighting Piggy Wiggly magnate who bested Wall street wisemeners "at their own game" recently, had a brisk fight, encountered at a meeting yesterday which followed Saunders' announcement of the campaign to sell 50,000 shares of stock in Memphis had ended in failure.

According to witnesses, Saunders and Robert Ellis, local banker, came to blows when the pool members remonstrated against the former's action in soliciting outside aid for Piggy Wiggly.

58TH JURY PAID OFF AND THEN DISCHARGED

BEAUMONT, Texas, May 11.—The jury was paid off in the 58th district court this morning and discharged.

Joe Guidry, negro, was given a year in the penitentiary in the 60th district court on a plea of guilty to manufacturing booze. Guidry was operating a still made out of a lard can.

Olivia Barry, negro girl, was given two years in the reformatory on a charge of burglary; but, there being no reformatory for women, she was paroled in the custody of her father.

Not through the efforts of state-men, or business men, or national leaders, but through a parliament of the world's highest characters is the dream and hope of educators for bringing peace on earth and good will to men to be realized.

This was the statement of Leonard Power, president-elect of Port Arthur Business college, today in an address before members of the Lions, Rotary and Civitan clubs at the Plaza hotel.

Power was speaking on the second subject in the Civitan study course on the international mind.

In Port Arthur

"To bring the problem down to Port Arthur, we have here a support that is destined to be the greatest in Texas," Power said. "All nations of the earth are pouring their populations through our streets. Twice a week at the schools here, these foreigners assemble to learn American principles from American teachers."

"Applied to international relations, education is a preventive and anti-dote for disorders. All other means of solving international problems are remedies," Power set forth.

Present Medals

Other features of the luncheon of the clubs today was the singing of Mrs. R. L. Drake and Miss Horstense Smith, accompanied by Mrs. Joe S. Park, and the presentation of medals to the winners in the Civitan club's second annual spelling bee, held recently. Odella Rodriguez, receiving the gold medal for taking first place; Mrs. Ernest Johnson a silver medal for second place, and Miss Christian Maties, winner of the first prize in the spelling bee last year, was presented with a silver medal for winning third place in the bee this year.

The Oswego is owned by the Union Petroleum Steamship company, but at the time of the fire aboard was chartered to the Gulf Refining company.

A Puzzle A Day

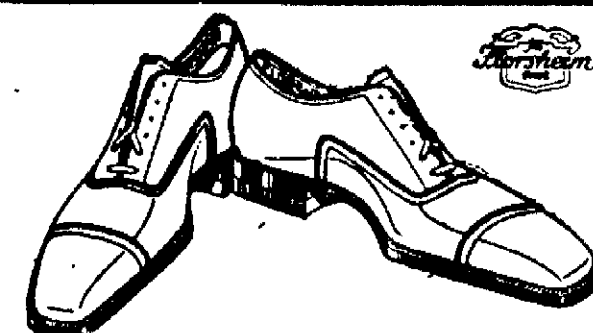

Can you discover a word in the English language that contains the two vowels A, E, I, O, U in their alphabetical order. Each vowel must appear but once, and in the order shown above.

Yesterday's answer
A ten-pointed star would be necessary to make the number of points on the Turkish emblem divisible by both four and six. Twelve is the smallest number divisible by both four and six. There are ten points on the star, and two points on the crescent, thus making twelve points on the emblem.

Where Society Brand Clothes Are Sold

COSTLY TO MOVE OIL AT MOSUL

Concession May Have to Be Exploited by Big Groups

NEW YORK, May 11.—No single group of capitalists anywhere in the world will take the risk of developing the Mosul oil fields. For that reason, the concession for the Mosul oil fields, which is being offered by the Turkish government, will not meet with success as long as it is held in the hands of a single group of capitalists.

The oil at Mosul is quite worthless there. To have any value it must be moved to the seacoast. There are three directions in which it can be taken: to the Black Sea, to the Mediterranean or to the Persian Gulf. The route to the Black Sea would be through mountain ranges, making the cost prohibitive. The Persian Gulf or the Mediterranean route must be chosen. Each is about 400 miles from Mosul. A pipe line carrying the oil would have to be constructed, which would cost about $20,000,000.

Require Heavy Subsidy

It is estimated that two million tons of oil per year would have to be sent through the pipe line to make it pay. In addition, a large expense would be involved in defending the pipe line against the attacks of nomads. Nothing would be easier than to break the piping by predatory tribes. These people would have to be subsidized, as probably the cheapest way of keeping the flow of oil uninterrupted. The subsidy might cost another quarter of a million tons of oil yearly.

The amount of oil that flows through a pipe line is limited by the size of the pipe, the grading and the pumping power. A million and a half tons per year is a very good flow. The Mosul line would have to carry much more than that, which would make the risk to capital more prohibitive. Oil companies do not like to put all their ventures into a single area. Nor does any government, guided by common sense principles of international commerce, wish to see its nationals take the grave risk of losing sums in pioneer development. Neither Great Britain nor America would be justified by common business sense, in going into the Mosul oil fields on exclusive contracts. The dangers are too great. After the pipe line had been completed, the price of oil might drop to such a level as to make the venture unprofitable for many years.

A Joint Enterprise

The proper procedure would be for the largest oil groups in the world, numbering some ten or twelve, to join together and develop the Mosul wells for the general benefit of all nations. American, British, Dutch and French companies could cooperate in this way to their mutual protection. It would be useless to ask German interests to join, because the Germans have no money for such purposes at present.

This scheme would be satisfactory to the American and British governments, in all probability. But, it cannot become operative until the actual ownership of Mosul is determined. Turkey claims proprietorship, while the new kingdom of Iraq, in which Great Britain has mandate rights, also asserts its sovereignty.

An international boundary tribunal eventually will settle the question. After that the time will come to start the international exploitation of Mosul oil by a combined group of European and American financiers.

TEXAN DIES AT 103 YEARS OLD

Wealthy Rancher Once Inmate of Poor House

GAINESVILLE, Texas, May 11.—"Uncle Billie" Vaughn, said to have been 103 years old and reputed wealthy West Texas cattleman and stock raiser, died here recently.

"Uncle Billie" came here sometime ago and when he returned to divulge any information as to his identity or former residence was taken to the county poor farm.

After three days at the county farm he was confined to the officials and others a few facts concerning his past. Further questioning revealed that he had become incensed at relatives for imagined personal injuries and decided to leave without telling anyone where he was going.

A son and other relatives were located in West Texas by authorities and it was learned from them that the aged man had extensive holdings in West Texas.

Short necklaces of large, round beads that fit closely about the neck-line are very fashionable now, particularly in cut and uncut amber.

PETS GRAVES TO BE DECORATED

Legion Annuity Provides for Unmarked Graves

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., May 11.—Because of the American Legion graves endowment fund, providing flowers in perpetuity for the resting places of American World war dead, means that 1313 unmarked graves of heroes will annually be decorated. In the eight United States cemeteries in Europe, now shrines of patriotism for Americans, rest the bodies of nearly a regiment of "unknown dead." The inclusion of the unmarked crypts among the 32,000 other American graves in Europe, will reconsecrate their graves with the others still remaining in foreign soil.

Mexico Helps
Practically every post of the Legion in the nation has joined in the campaign to raise this endowment fund, that the memories of those who made the supreme sacrifice shall be recalled. Post members have set out determined not only to raise the quota set for them for this fund, but to exceed this whenever possible. Mass meetings, personal solicitations and broad publicity campaigns have been utilized by legionnaires to secure the necessary funds for the endowment. Increases in receipts have been steadily noted, and many department organizations of the Legion are already over the quota set. Mexico has reported 68 per cent more than allocated, and France has raised 169,000 francs for the fund. Contributions from nationally known men and women are received almost daily.

President Harding sent in a check for $50 and highly commended the purpose of the endowment. The letter accompanying the check commended the contribution and said:

"The American Legion graves endowment fund has my heartiest support. It is a national duty to assist the Legion in raising this endowment. The World war veterans whose bodies still lie overseas died with the hope that their gift to freedom would suffice to save their brothers and children in making like sacrifices. They died in the hope that the sacrifice might be a contribution toward putting an end to war.

"We owe them not only this tribute of perpetuating their memory, but our unswerving loyalty to their ideal that the war in which they fought might mark the end of all wars. Please accept the enclosed contribution on the behalf of one who can not too greatly emphasize his obligation to the memory of our dead overseas, or his determination that they shall not have died in vain."

Salesman Kills Girl Because She Broke Their Engagement

LOS ANGELES, Cal., May 11.—Joseph Becker, real estate salesman of Salt Lake City, shot and killed Miss Jane B. Kelson here Sunday night because she had broken her engagement to marry him, according to a confession the police said he made. The slaying took place on a high and secluded cliff in Elksan park, where the couple went for a walk after dinner.

After the shooting Becker walked a quarter of a mile through the park to a telephone, calmly called the police and asked them to send an ambulance. When it arrived Becker helped put Miss Kelson's body into it and gave himself up to the police.

Becker said he was 48 years old and that Miss Kelson, who lived in Los Angeles, was 22.

OLD FREIGHTERS TO MEET MAY 18

Will Reflect Early Days of Indians and Bad Men

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, May 11.—The days of the old West when long trains of white topped wagons drawn by slow moving oxen crept along the plains of West Texas and stout hearted pioneers braved the dangers of Indians, cattle rustlers and "bad men" to establish homes in the new territory, will be reflected in the Fourth Annual Meeting of Pioneer Freighters which will be held here for three days beginning May 18.

Real, grisly old pioneers, men who platted the white-capped caravans, some of those who drove lumbering oxen over hundreds of miles of uninhabited territory, old stage drivers and money mail riders, all will gather here to swap yarns of the west that has gone. Each one will strive to outdo the other in his tales of hold-ups, Indian massacres, stampedes and the other hardships that went to make the old west so interesting to read about.

The Pioneer Freighters were organized March 11, 1920, with eleven members. Since then, however, the membership has grown until now nearly one hundred names are included in the list.

The pioneers have invited members of the Grand Army of the Republic and of the Confederate veterans to attend the meeting, participate in the entertainment and live again for three days the life of a pioneer.

Inhale Your Food and You Will Remain Beautiful, Says Professor of Johns Hopkins University

PHILADELPHIA, May 11.—"To stay young and fresh, don't eat your food, inhale it,"

This, according to Dr. Paul Haupt of Johns Hopkins university is the secret of perpetual flapperism. The secret was revealed by Dr. Haupt in an address here to members of the Philosophical society.

"Why is it that our modern goddesses start to break when they pass their teens?" he asked. "At 25 they are haggard and old. Their faces are seamed and lined. Their freshness and charm has departed."

"Why—overeating," he answered. "A good study of mythology shows that the gods and goddesses never ate and remained inconsequence, perpetually youthful. When a god or goddess was fed a meal he heaved over a burning sacrifice and inhaled the fumes of a roast lamb or a sacrificed bull. He sailed away in the upper air well nourished."

"Now our modern goddesses are fading before our eyes because they can not tame their desire for food. They should content themselves with the aroma of incense and delicately cooked food."

"If they want a cigarette they should sit near some one who is smoking, never smoke themselves. Their fragility and youthfulness would ensure in proportion as they limited their food to liquid diet with occasional inhalations of solid food."

"If women persist in following the mortal custom of consuming large quantities of gross food, she will continue to fade and grow before our eyes. She will also coarsen herself. To be young and beautiful she must get back to the condition of her ancestors who dined off the wing of a chicken and a cup of tea."

Time flies. It's fly time.

UNION MEMORIAL FOR A. A. POTEET

Brotherhood Adopts Resolution On His Death

A resolution to the memory of Commissioner A. A. Poteet, a member of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, has been adopted by the local lodge No. 305 of the organization on the death of the city official.

The resolution was handed The News today. It follows:

Whereas, it has pleased our Divine Creator to remove from our midst and his loved ones our late friend and brother, A. A. Poteet, who has been a member of our organization for many years, and was honored and loved by all who knew him; he died as he had lived, honorable and straightforward in every act of life; a splendid example he was for those who have life yet before them.

Therefore be it resolved, that we, the members of local lodge No. 305 of the International Brotherhood of Boilermakers, Iron Shipbuilders and Helpers of America, extend to his loved ones our sincere sympathy in their bereavement, and pray Almighty God to give them strength to bear the loss of that loved one, lost to this world but not lost, only gone before.

Goodby, till morning comes again. We part but not in hopeless pain. The night is short; and hope is sweet. It fills our hearts and speeds our feet.

And so we chant the sweet refrain Goodby till morning comes again.

And be it further resolved, that four copies of these resolutions be made that one may be sent to the family of our deceased brother, one to the press, one to our official journal and one to be placed on our local files.

By the committee on resolutions:
ROY HILL,
J. L. O'NEAL,

ELECT DR. BLEDSOE S. M. A. PRESIDENT

Dr. Bledsoe has been a member of the board of counselors of the state association, serving as chairman of this board for the past four years. He is a member of the Texas State Board of Health, and has been offered the position of state health officer by Governor Pat M. Neff, but has declined to accept the appointment.

Dr. Bledsoe's official connection with the Texas medical associations dates back to 1902 when he was elected secretary of the Tyler County Medical association. Since that time he has been vice president of the state association, president of the South Texas district of the association, in 1914; president of the Jefferson County Medical society in 1912, and for the past three years has been a delegate from the Texas association to the national medical association conventions.

A Tight Vote

The election of Dr. Bledsoe as president of the State Medical association to serve after the 1924 convention came at the closing session of the 1923 convention Thursday. He was placed in nomination by Dr. M. L. Graves, of Galveston, and ran against Dr. C. M. Rossner, of Dallas, nominated by Dr. A. B. Small, of Dallas. The vote stood 45 to 41 in favor of

Dr. Bledsoe. Dr. A. C. Scott, elected at the 1922 convention, assumed office Thursday afternoon, and will serve until the closing session of the 1924 convention when Dr. M. F. Bledsoe becomes president. The convention next year will be held in San Antonio. Other principal officers elected were:

Dr. J. W. Corbett, Marlin; A. J. Ross, Lockhart; and Dr. J. M. White, Texarkana, vice presidents, and Dr. John S. Turner, Dallas, re-elected trustee.

HARDING PLANS ALASKAN TRIP

Not to Be Political Junket, President Says

WASHINGTON, May 11.—President Harding's plans for his Alaskan trip, which have undergone complete revision, were approaching completion today.

Mr. Harding will make at least half his trip by water, thereby eliminating many of the speeches he would have to deliver were the outgoing journey and the return both made overland.

It has not been definitely determined whether he will go west via the Panama canal or return that way. He will visit the canal, however, at some stage of the trip.

The decision to eliminate one leg of the long overland train trip is part of the president's determination that the journey shall not be turned into a political junket. He wants to impress on the public mind that it is an Alaskan trip, undertaken for the purpose of studying Alaska and of laying the groundwork for a program of development, the first step in which is to be the removal of existing conflicts between governmental agencies over government of the vast north country.

An early announcement of the itinerary is expected. According to tentative plans drawn up after the original itinerary had been thoroughly revised, the president and Mrs. Harding will leave here between June 15 and June 20 and will return some time in August.

U. S. IN PAST PAID HEAVILY

Only Decatur's Defeat of the Algerians Ended 'Habit'

WASHINGTON, May 11.—The United States officially and unofficially, has often found it wise to pay "a cent for tribute."

Throughout the short history of the nation, but especially before 1815 when our navy rose overnight as a world force on the high seas, incidents followed each other with disturbing frequency in which money had to be paid to protect lives of American citizens.

What will be the attitude of the United States in this latest of international outrages, in which neither of the two governments is directly responsible?

Will it have to pay, either as a government, or indirectly through its citizens? If history is a criterion, it is an even break that the bandits of China, provided meager news reports thus far are correct, will receive money for the release of their captives.

Once Paid Tribute

The most outstanding example of ransom paid for release of Americans made captive lasted from 1785 until 1812, in which the United States for the first time paid a million dollars to the Bey of Algiers to redeem seamen captured by Algerian pirates.

In 1795 the government actually was forced to agree to payment of an annual sum for this purpose, in accordance with the custom established by European nations.

It was only after that hardy young American, Commodore Stephen Decatur, with a small but powerful squadron humbled the pirates of northern Africa, that this practice was stopped.

Has Repaid Ransoms

Since 1815, payments made officially by the government to bandits for release of Americans has stopped. However, in the 108 years that have passed, instances have arisen when the government repaid Americans who contributed to a fund which was used for that very purpose. The most pointed instance of this form of reimbursement by the government of "a cent for tribute" came in the famous Ellen M. Stone case.

The long war with Algeria pirates, however, is the sore spot in American history. The pirates would capture an American ship and make prisoners of its crew and passengers. They would force them to work as slaves until money was received for their release. This soon became a lucrative business.

In 1812, when war broke out between Great Britain and the United States, the Bey of Algeria, believing

Britain would wipe the small American navy from the seas, renewed his attacks on American ships, and as his pirates were more numerous than those of Tripoli, the other northern African independent state, he collected more money.

The long struggle ended only with Commodore Decatur's campaign against the marauders, which will live forever in the annals of history.

Comfort, warden of the vestry, will make a statement to the congregation relative to the continuation of services and the calling of a new rector.

Dr. Franck will also read a pastoral letter from Bishop Clinton S. Quin.

DENIES HABEAS FOR ELGIN MAN

Refused to Testify in Flogging Cases

AUSTIN, May 11.—Application of G. S. Dunbar of Elgin, for habeas corpus writ, releasing him from custody at Georgetown on contempt of court order for refusing to answer grand jury questions in investigation of the flogging of F. R. Burleson was denied by the court of criminal appeals in open session this morning following arguments of his attorneys, G. S. Felts, and by District Attorney Dan Moody, for the state. The court held that the record did not show Dunbar demanded immunity in the investigation, and that the commitment appeared regular.

Application for habeas corpus writ of Murray Jackson of Taylor, another of the four men held on contempt in the same case, was dismissed for want of jurisdiction by the supreme court Thursday evening.

No applications in cases of Godfrey Lostus and W. E. Posey the other men in confinement, have been filed in the state courts here.

CONVINCED

Houston is the dwelling place of a certain young lady who is exceptionally blessed with the gifts of the goddess of fortune. She is very fair to look upon, bright, witty, and possesses that gracious charm so difficult to describe, but so potent to please, that is commonly called personal magnetism. Although cast in such a lonely world, and endowed with so many graces of mind and matter, she is no idle butterfly of fashion, and the adulation she received from a numerous circle of admirers has not turned her head.

She has a close friend, a young lady of plain exterior, but a sensible and practical mind, whom she habitually consults as a wise counselor and advisor concerning the intricate problems of life.

One day she said to Marian—the wise friend: "How I wish there was some way to find out who among these flattering suitors of mine is sincere and genuine in the compliments that are paid me. Men are such deceivers, and they all give me such unstinted praise, and make such pretty speeches to me, that I do not know who among them, if any, are true and sincere in their regard."

"I will tell you a way," said Marian. "The next evening when there are a number of them calling upon you, recite a dramatic poem, and then tell me how each one expresses his opinion of your effort."

The young lady was much impressed with the idea, and on the following Friday evening when some half dozen young men were in the parlor paying her attentions, she volunteered to recite. She has not the least dramatic talent, but she stood up and went through a long poem, with many gestures and rolling of eyes, and pressing of her hands to her heart.

She did it very badly, and without the least regard for the rules of elocution or expression.

Later on, her friend Marian asked her how her effort was received.

"Oh," she said, "they all crowded around me, and appeared to be filled with the utmost delight. Tom and Henry and Jim and Charles were in raptures. They said that Mary Anne could not but have equaled it. They said they had never heard anything spoken with such dramatic effect and feeling."

"Everyone praised you?" asked Marian.

"All but one, Mr. Judson sat back in his chair and never applauded at all. He told me after I had finished that he was afraid I had very little dramatic talent at all."

"Now," said Marian. "You know who is sincere and genuine."

"Yes," said the beautiful girl, with eyes shining with enthusiasm. "The test was a complete success. I detect that odious Judson, and I'm going to begin studying for the stage right away."

RECORD OF THE YEARS

Taxation shall be equal and uniform. They said it 50 years ago when they made the constitution. They have been saying it ever since, but that is all. Fathers of the first constitution said it and they meant it. They did not have much to tax in those far off days but they were making the organic law of the republic and they knew that those who came after them would have a plenty to tax for liberal support of the government if they had sufficient sense to make use of the gifts that God had given them—an empire whose latent or undeveloped wealth was sufficient even at that time to stagger the world.

Taxation shall be equal and uniform. Sam Houston and the mighty men of action who surrounded him said it first and then when a new constitution was written almost fifty years ago many of its makers had known Houston and his co-builders of a constitution and an empire. Houston and his colleagues builded before the coming of the Civil War. They planted the mudsills of a new civilization and a mighty commonwealth yet to come. Not many years thereafter came the war between the states, the secession of those states that formed the planters' republic doomed to die on Appomattox fated field. This was the end of secession. This was the finish of chattel slavery on the continent of North America. But this was not the finish of the dogma that taxation shall be free and equal wherever the white man had builded a civilization under American skies or where ever the flag of freedom floats. Out of the ruins of fratricidal strife, the shedding of the blood of the brave and the wholesale destruction of the property that had been accumulated during a century of life of the republic, out of military rule carpebagism and black domination emerged the all-conquering sons of the Caucasian race who believed this to be a government founded by white men and to be ruled by white men with this old-time demand:

Taxation shall be equal and uniform. Richard Coke reinstated a government of the people. He was sent to the American senate to voice the will of his people. Society was in a chaotic condition and building of an empire was slow work. It ran along in the same old ruts until the coming of James Stephen Hogg. He found conditions not to his liking. He found the burden of taxation on the backs of the people. He found a well-established and well-organized machine with the powerful in charge and the few enjoying most of the benefits of government. This is what he said at the time. He unfolded a program. He declared that taxation should be equal and uniform. He fought law-makers to a finish. Corporations were not controlled when Hogg appeared on the scene. Common carriers had a go-as-you-please policy. Their legal advisors were the political bosses or close to the political bosses of the state. Great landowners, the kings of the range were partial politically speaking to the machine. Wealth had been accumulated and was consolidated politically speaking. Hogg fought for eight years. Many of the policies which he advocated were crystallized into laws. He fought until he died for the great taxation principle of the fathers but the constitutional provision never was carried into effect by the lawmakers of his day. This is what the constitution said then and it reads the same way today:

Taxation shall be equal and uniform. Many grasped at the mantle of Hogg and many claimed it but it was much too large for any of the claimants but they did the best they knew how as they walked along the trail blazed by the man known as the great commoner whose dust rests under a carpet of green in the shade of a pecan grove. He planted the seed and the soil was fallow. Some day a harvester will come. Some day all the lawmakers or a sufficient majority thereof will bow to the injunction:

"Taxation shall be equal and uniform."
"Taxation shall be equal and uniform."

American exports of corn in 1922 reached the highest value ever recorded for that commodity, $115,000,000, although the immense quantity shipped abroad last year, 164,000,000 bushels, fell somewhat short of the exports of 1897 and 1901. Europeans have learned the value of corn as a food product, a substitute for wheat bread.

It is announced that the largest amount of sugar ever exported from the United States, 1,837,000,000 pounds, went overseas in 1922. All the peoples of the war-ridden countries are not paupers. Hungry men and women never buy sugar.

PANAMA PETROLEUM

Drilling for oil in Panama is the latest. The Texas Company has acquired a concession of 50,000 acres and two drills will be employed in the survey. The Sinclair Oil company has a large concession in Panama and its drillers are reported to have struck favorable sands and oil. Another American company, the Gulf, controlled by the Mellon interests, is reported to have found oil in Panama. Petroleum hunting is getting to be the greatest game in the world.

TEXAS IGNORED

Woman has the ballot. Now the National League of Women Voters has announced the names of the twelve greatest living American women. They are: Jane Addams, Cecilia Beaux, Annie Jump Cannon, Carrie Chapman Catt, Anna Pottsford Comstock, Minnie Maddern Fiske, Louise Homer, Julia Lathrop, Florence Rena Sabin, M. Carey Thomas, Martha Van Ransselaer, Edith Wharton. And not a law maker in the list. And worse and more of it, not a Texan in the list.

Texas is a large producer of sulphur. More than 486,000 tons of sulphur were exported by American producers last year. There must be a market for sulphur in foreign lands.

RUBBER

America leads the world in the manufacture of motor vehicles. Americans imported 674,000 pounds of crude rubber last year. Great Britain has a monopoly of rubber production and buyers of motor vehicles must pay. Henry Ford promises that all those engaged in the manufacture of motor vehicles are making plans for the production of rubber in such quantities as will in time smash the British monopoly. Ford says it may cost millions but there are billions invested in the motor vehicle industry and these manufacturers are large consumers of crude rubber.

TEXAS ONION CROP

Not many years ago the island of Bermuda supplied the cities of America with onions. Now Texas has been substituted for Bermuda. Reports of the onion crop in the Laredo country has been placed around four thousand cars and thirteen hundred carloads will begin moving about the last of this week, will be moving in volume by April 20, and thereafter until the middle of May. This is what irrigation has done for the lower valley; this is what irrigation has done for the onion eaters of America.

MODERATION

By BERTON BRADLEY
Some fellows plead for "just one" of your glances.

Asking to play with you, once in a while.

When they may ask in the light of your smile.

That's fair enough, they are modest in pleading.

I'm a bit different, constantly I'm making it plain to you—I'm pleading.

All that I'm asking is all of you: time!

"Give me a thought now and then," say your wooers.

"I can't expect such an awful lot more."

I don't resemble your other pursuers. "Think of me only," is what I implore!

Think of me eight times and think of me day-times.

All of my mind with your glance is fraught;

So in your quiet, your dull or your gay times,

All that I'm asking is all of your thought.

Others may plead for a share of all to them.

Asking for "only a bit of your heart."

Though it be merely the tiniest see-thing!"

I want the whole of it, not just a part!

All that I ask for is all of your love—me.

All of your time and your love and—your wit.

What I desire is beyond any measure.

All that I ask for is all that there is!

MARSHALL WALKER COMING

Marshall and Blanche Walker, two of the cleverest comedians of the modern comedy stage, and their company, "The Whizz Lang Revue," upon a return engagement at the Strand Theatre Sunday.

The Walker company played for some fifteen weeks here several months ago, and there were such numerous requests for their return that Manager Holton has brought about their return.

Many of the old favorite principals, are with the company with several popular additions, one of whom is Stanley Crabbe, late tenor of the New Orleans minstrel.

FAMOUS VOLCANO FILMED

Manipulating motion picture cameras on the edge of the famous volcano Kilauea furnished plenty of excitement to the cast of "The White Flower," the new Betty Compson Paramount picture, which was screened in the Hawaiian Islands, and which will be on view at the Peoples Theatre Sunday and Monday.

The company remained in Hawaii for several weeks, encompassing in that time beautiful backgrounds of Honolulu and exciting swimming scenes on the beach at Waikiki.

WONDERFUL PICTURE

Plenty of heart tugs are promised those who witness the picturization of Kenneth B. Clarke's story, "The Kingdom Within," which comes to the Liberty Theatre on Sunday.

It is said that heart interest is the soul of every great film and as this drama has this human touch it puts it high in the category of great pictures.

There is a deep, underlying love interest in this picture, the love of a man and a maid, the love of a father and son, and the unselfish love of a cripple for all who suffer.

It is a picture that has many tense and dramatic situations with an appeal to the heart that will bring tears one moment and laughter the next.

PARIS, May 11.—Barbot, the French aviator, who has been making remarkable flights in a plane driven by an engine of less than ten horse power, on one of which he crossed the English channel, told the United Press today he is sailing May 19 to fit his tiny craft from New York to Chicago with only one stop.

A manufacturer is planning mass production of Barbot's planes, fitted with folding wings that will permit them to be housed in ordinary garages.

SECRET TUNNEL USED BY BEN

Contractor of Shiloh House to Be Quizzed

ST. JOSEPH, Mich., May 11.—Charges that secret chambers and passageways exist in the House of David for use of "King" Benjamin Burnell and other high cult leaders was investigated by Judge Harry Dingenman's "one-man" grand jury today.

Philip Klum, the contractor who built Shiloh, Burnell's residence, was summoned to disclose whether the cult's "king" could be hiding in a secret apartment at the colony.

He will also be quizzed as to charges by the colony's enemies that Benjamin used secret tunnels in passing to and from rooms of young girls.

Following testimony of Louise Halger Johnson, lula hula dancer until recently at Eden Springs, the cult's famous amusement resort, other witnesses will be summoned to ascertain whether Benjamin now demands a "whitewash" affidavit from women witnesses when they leave the colony, authorities announced.

MILDRED TAYLOR

By MARIAN HALE NEW YORK, May 11.—We have borrowed the kimono from the Japanese, the turban from India, and jewels and embroideries from China, but outside of these superficial acquisitions, what do most of us really know about our oriental sisters?

Mildred Taylor, writer, organizer, lecturer and feminist, is convinced that we know little—that we have never even penetrated the inner lives of these mysterious ladies on the other side of the earth.

"Most of us have only two pictures of the oriental woman," she states. "One that of a down-trodden slave of a domineering husband, the other that of a bejeweled seductress. Of the real woman we are ignorant. I believe she has much to give us."

"I believe," she continued, "the present vogue for oriental costume, jewelry and home decorations is only the prelude to a much more far-reaching acquaintance with oriental art, philosophy and the science of living. 'Go east,' instead of 'Go West,' will be the cry."

YOUNGBLOOD TO BE THE RABBIT

House to Hunt Him Down for Failure to Appear

AUSTIN, May 11.—The house of representatives waited vainly for the appearance of Hull Youngblood last night.

By formal resolution, Youngblood of San Antonio had been ordered to appear at 8 o'clock at the bar of the house for questioning regarding remarks alleged to have been made at a luncheon of the San Antonio Salesmanship club, in which he is alleged to have called the legislators "rabbits" and "hill billies" and charged corruption in the legislature.

At 9:30 a motion was made by Putnam and carried without a dissenting vote, calling for the appointment of the world by automobile in company with her brother, Peter Taylor, scientist, and Blauding Sloan, New York artist.

They have started from New York to San Francisco by motor and will use that to camp with in the orient. It is equipped with a miniature artist's studio, a radio outfit in a shock-proof box, a typewriter and a complete camping outfit.

Miss Taylor calls the tour a venture in international friendship.

Scene of Big Kidnaping is Boiling Pot of China, Where 1921 Boxer Row Started

BELIEVE BANDITS SOUGHT RANSOM

Outlaw Depredation Worst in World History

In the whole world's history of bandit activities there has never been an instance of the Chinese outlaw depredation comparable to the capture of multi-millionaire Americans and other foreigners who were dragged from the Peking-Tientsin train near the small station of Lincheng in the lake region of Western Shantung province.

That the coup was planned for what the brigands could get out of it financially was the first thought naturally following the outrage.

Recent troubles in China have not been of anti-foreign character, like the Boxer movement, and while prisoners in danger from the reckless irresponsibility of their captors, the latter's main purpose is to take as good care of them as possible in order not to jeopardize payment of ransom.

Realize Quarry's Worth
Among the Chinese engaged in half-revolutionary half-marauding operations throughout most of their country, are a good many of western education, who realize the importance and financial possibilities of the prisoners taken in connection with the Lincheng affair.

The larger of these bands have agents in such foreign centers as Shanghai and Tientsin, through which they dispose of their loot and secure supplies of arms and ammunition.

From these sources it is likely that they had full information relative to the identities and standing of their captives.

Shantung was the province in which the Japanese established an influential intervention during the world war—a sphere which the Tokyo government ordered evacuated as a result of post-war agreement.

This despite the prospect of an immediate outbreak of banditry as soon as the Japanese troops were withdrawn—because the Peking authority was admittedly nonexistent there.

Army Needed for Capture
The province gets its name from "tung," meaning "east," and "shan," or "mountains." Thus it is east of the range which divides it from the western territory of Shansi—west of the mountains.

The wide country between the two provinces affords refuge for bandits where a huge army alone can cope with them.

Heretofore negotiations for release of wealthy prisoners have generally been conducted by outlaws. In this part of the country through the famous Chinese guild of Shantung bankers, an organization with ramifications in every part of China, having tremendous strength and, if its pledge is given, of unquestioned integrity.

TERRAPIN WANDERS 46 YEARS; DIES UNDER CAR
DALLAS, Texas, May 11.—A land terrapin, after forty-eight years of wanderings was returned home for the last time recently—dead.

While a resident of Fronson, Mo., back in 1875, A. W. Russell caught the terrapin and after carving his name and the date on its shell, released the animal.

Three years ago, the terrapin was returned to Russell, now a resident of Dallas.

It was then set free in Russell's greenhouse and orchard, from which it often emerged, always heading north apparently attempting to work its way back to its old haunts in Missouri.

The terrapin escaped for its last time recently when it wandered out into the street.

A loud crash. A neighbor of Russell's rushed to the front just in time to see an automobile passing.

In the middle of the street the terrapin lay, its shell smashed to bits. The only piece of any size left was one bearing the carved inscription, "1875."

STONE CASE RECALLED

Nationwide excitement caused by the capture of rich Americans by Chinese bandits recalls vividly another kidnapping involving an American—the Stone abduction.

Miss Ellen M. Stone, an American missionary, traveling through the then Turkish province of Macedonia, was captured by Bulgarian brigands under leadership of the notorious outlaw Boris Stankov, in September, 1901, and held to ransom.

The Turkish government, prodded by the United States, made strenuous efforts to rescue her, but finally was compelled to abandon the attempt through fear that Miss Stone and a companion, Miss Tsilka, who was taken with her, would be slain by their captors.

A movement was then launched in the United States to raise by subscription the ransom demanded by Stankov.

The latter originally insisted on payment of 25,000 pounds, or about $125,000, but later agreed to accept $95,000, raised by popular donation in America.

The money having been turned over to him, he faithfully released the prisoners in February, 1902.

A baby was born to Miss Tsilka during her captivity.

Raisuli

Moroccan Outlaw Was Leader in Last Famous Kidnap Case

The celebrated Moroccan outlaw leader, Raisuli, the beneficiary in 1904 to the extent of 11,000 pounds through the kidnapping of Ion Perdicaris, an American citizen of Greek birth, from the latter's home in the outskirts of Tangier.

Perdicaris' stepson, Vorley, a British subject, was captured at the same time, and at first a demand of $70,000 was made for release of the pair. Both the United States and British governments made the most forcible representations to the sultan of Morocco in behalf of the two prisoners.

President Roosevelt, in connection with the incident, sent his celebrated messenger, traveling peremptorily on "Perdicaris' alive or Raisuli dead."

The sultan accepted the former alternative, and, in addition to paying the 11,000 pounds to which Raisuli finally yielded his price, disarmed the governor of Tangier and released all the outlaw's followers whom he had been holding prisoners in Tangier.

German Capitalists Depress Marks to Enhance Profits

Inflation Causes Inflation With Printing Presses Turning Out 360 Billion Dollars Worth a Week

By HIRSH KELLY MODERWELL
BERLIN, Germany, May 11.—An American who has lived two years in Berlin said to me recently, "If I had begun with a capital of $200 when I came here, and had systematically speculated with it, I could have paid all my living expenses, supported my family in relative luxury and still have $200 clear in my pocket."

For his amusement he had figured the process out rather carefully. There is no doubt that he could have done it, without any special expert knowledge, simply by "bearing" the mark. With his dollars as security he could have borrowed marks and bought things of value with them. When the time came to repay the loan the mark would have fallen. He could then have sold his goods at increased prices, and repaid the loan with money worth perhaps half what it was when he had borrowed. The other half would be clear profit.

Hundreds of thousands, even millions of Germans live or supplement their incomes in this way but those who do it best of all are the industrialists.

The process of inflation which has made this possible has been going on continuously in Germany since the armistice. Germany has more than 5,000,000,000,000 marks in circulation, and is printing more in 22 print shops at a rate of about $900,000,000,000 a week.

Inflation Causes Inflation
At first, just after the armistice, the government printed money because it could not help itself, just as France did. But France was able to borrow huge sums in America and Germany was not. Therefore, France was able to stop inflation and Germany was not. For Germany had been obliged to pledge all her resources in payment of vast unnamed sums of money. To this extent the Germans can claim with some justice that their inflation was due to reparations.

Later, it became just as true that Germany's failure to pay reparations was partly due to inflation. Inflation caused a constant rise in prices and upset the government's taxation system while constantly increasing its expenditures. And the government resorted continuously to more inflation.

The point came when foreign purchasers of the mark lost all confidence in its stability and demanded for their dollars perhaps twice as many marks to protect themselves against depreciation. Thence came the double valuation of the mark. It took $200 worth of marks, reckoned in German purchasing power, to buy $100.

When this point was reached, inflation became good business for Germans exporting to high currency countries. They could get their labor and domestic raw materials for one-half or a third of the cost elsewhere. The only condition was that the process of inflation should be continuous. If it ceased there would surely come a business crash, involving bankruptcies, unemployment and possibly bloody revolution.

Industrialists Strong for Inflation
From this point on the industrialists and indeed business in general had a definite interest in depreciating German exchange. They used all their influence (until the Ruhr invasion) to keep the mark falling. Stinnes has consistently opposed any attempt to stabilize the mark by stopping inflation, always saying: "It is not possible yet."

Did Stinnes and his friends "engineer" the depreciation of the mark? Did they coerce the government or conspire with the government to make it depreciate? Such a charge cannot be proved. But coercion or conspiracy were hardly necessary. The government was caught in its own money-go-round and could not escape.

For the more money the government printed the faster its value depreciated. While the quantity of money increased, the total value of it decreased. At one time during last winter it was worth only about $100,000,000, or little more than a third of the reichbank's gold reserve. Thus the increase in the quantity of money actually caused a chronic money shortage.

If the government had attempted to stop inflation, the industrialists would have said: "If you don't print more money there will be a money shortage. A general business crash will follow. There will be unemployment, riots, revolution. Dare you take the responsibility?"

Invisible But Potent
Of course the government didn't dare. It is probable that the trial of strength never came. But it is certain the government knew that it would have the whole power of the industrialists against it if it made the attempt.

Thus, the influence of the industrialists on the government's inflation policy was probably invisible. The views of the vast majority of the country's leading business men must have had overwhelming weight with any wavering government minister.

Herl Havensstein, manager of the reichbank, has the technical right to refuse to discount the government's treasury bills—that is, to block inflation. He holds his office for life, and thus is subject to no direct political influence. He enjoys a semi-sacrosanct status and no one would dare assert that he had been subjected to "improper" influence. But even less than the government would he be likely to take the responsibility for ruining business.

Politics Sometimes a Figure
The mark has reached a point where the chief influence determining its value is psychological. Its sudden plunges and recoveries do not obey the ordinary laws of supply and the quantity of money. There can be little doubt that the industrialists, sometimes with the acquiescence of the government, have deliberately manipulated it of late for economic or political ends. Because the whole currency is worth so little, it is easy to "dull" it with a comparatively small amount of foreign money by bringing dollar pressure on the chief nerve center, the international bourse. This is what the government did at the beginning of the Ruhr invasion. The previous terrific fall of the mark, like the similar falls at other times of political crisis, may well have been partly artificial, due to the sudden concerted selling of marks by the industrialists, with the object of destroying international confidence in the German currency.

The trick is so easy to those with large reserves of foreign currency, and the gains to the industrialists could well be so immense, that it is hard to believe they have not frequently practiced it.

Pro Sign Effectively Stops Booze Runners
HOUSTON, Texas, May 11.—When tourists returning from Galveston or other seashore points see a big white sign stretched across the road they had better stop. This is the warning of prohibition officers here who have conceived a novel method of stopping automobiles suspected of carrying liquor.

The pro-agents have a huge sign reading "Federal Prohibition Officers," which is stretched across the road as the suspected liquor car approaches.

To run over the sign, constitutes a violation of federal law, according to the officers.

So far no resistance has been encountered and excellent results in the form of arrests and bottled refreshments have been obtained.

RUFFLES POPULAR
Ruffles of pleating seen on dresses and blouses are growing wild as they grow more numerous. Even jersey costumes are showing them.

It is not true that when a runaway balloon landed near Plano, Ill., they thought it was an oil stock salesman.

It costs no more to buy a KELLY

THERE is little to say about a tire that tire advertisements have not already said.

After all, it's performance, not promises, that counts. On thousands of cars Kelly Cords are telling their own story, and telling it more convincingly than any advertisement could because they speak in terms of mileage, service and safety.
